

AGED WOMAN SAYS THERE'LL ALWAYS BE SILLY STYLES

Octogenarian Reaches Verdict
After Seeing Them All for Many Years.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 15.—"Lawdy, me, I suppose there'll always be fool styles. There always were. When I was a girl people laughed at the hoop skirts and made jokes about 'em, but we wore them just the same."

Thus Mrs. Mary J. Daugherty celebrated her 80th birthday at her home on Lexington av. the other day, looked back across the years and voiced her views of what women wore in the days when she was a slip of a girl in Ashland county, O., and what they wear—or fail to wear—today.

Mrs. Daugherty won a beauty contest in her youth and her face still exhibits traces of that beauty despite the burden of the years which, however, has touched her lightly. She still does a day's housework without becoming exhausted. Her sense of humor, always keen, so friends say, has not left her and she looks upon the styles of today with a tolerant eye, although all do not meet her approval.

Modern Girl O. K.
"The girl of today is all right," she said, "but she ought to be taught that no gentleman goes to extremes. The girl who has good taste wears skirts that are neither too long nor too short. They may vary their head-dresses to suit their faces, but they shouldn't make themselves conspicuous or ridiculous."

She doesn't like French heels, however, nor does the present fashion of dressing hair appeal to her.

"I wonder how many of those still-heeled girls will be able to do a day's work when they are 36?" she queried.

Sprightly and active, Mrs. Daugherty rejoices that she has been permitted to live to see so many changes.

"I almost feel as if I had lived in two different planets when I compare the present day with my girlhood," she said.

DISARM MEET IS HOPE.

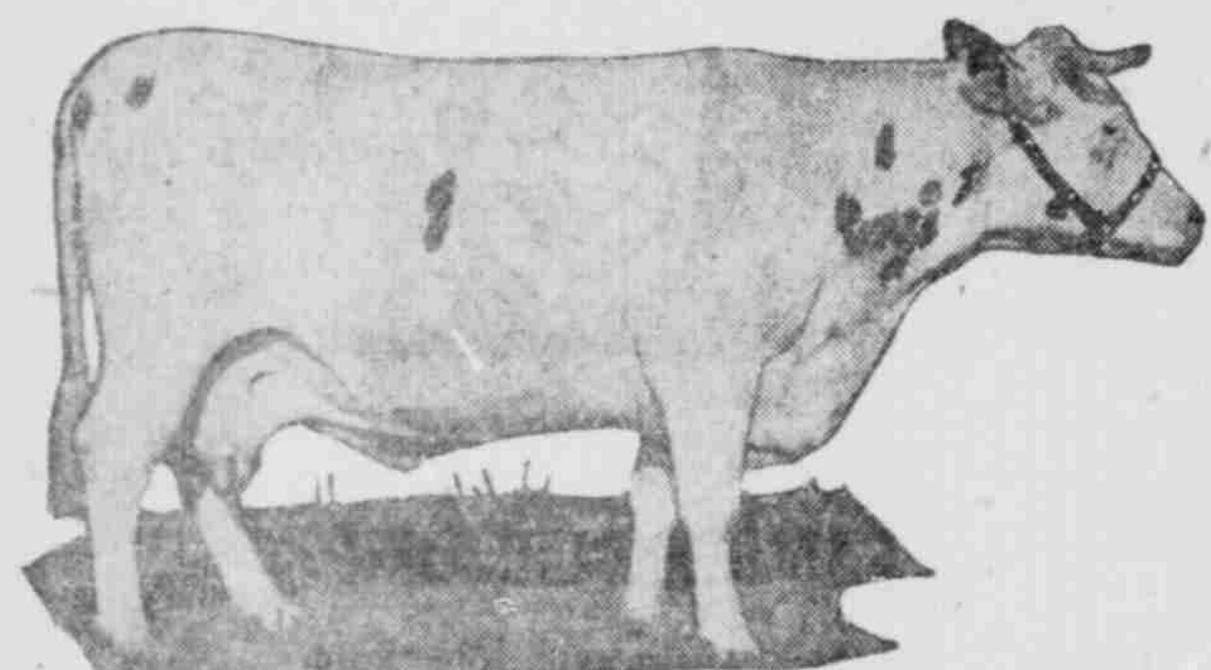

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The Harding administration regards the disarmament conference as its hope for reducing immediately government expenditures. This became known to senate administration leaders in connection with inquiries as to what extent expenditures are to be curtailed next year.

The administration has already ordered reductions totaling more than $350,000,000, exclusive of the navy. President Harding has set $350,000,000 as the minimum saving for all the departments.

Do You Know How to Make Fine Truffle Dishes?

Truffles belong to the mushroom family, though they grow underground instead of on top of the ground as the mushrooms do.

All efforts of art and science have failed in attempts made to cultivate truffles by regular methods, and they still remain a law unto themselves and a lucrative source of income to the countries which export them.

Analysis shows that truffles are composed of all component parts of the vegetable kingdom, carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, with a large percentage of nitrogen, which gives them also the nature of animal food. There are three varieties known, black, red and white, the latter being of but little value. The red truffles are very scarce, so it is the black ones referred to by Savarin which are sought after and valued.

The finest truffles come from France, though Italy contributes a few and a very few come from England. The best ones are from Perigord, Provence and Dauphine. The white ones come from Piedmont. They come bottled in oil, or in brine, like olives, dried or in powdered form.

In hunting the truffle, pigs are used, first, because being very fond of them they scent them quickly, and they also root them up without destroying the mass as a spade would be apt to do. Separating the mass, the truffles are about the size of medium potatoes, with a deep, rough exterior. They have an agreeable odor, are light in proportion to their size, and are elastic when pressed by the fingers. They are first scrubbed and cleaned, then they are trimmed, and the trimmings are dried and powdered. The ends and odd pieces are dried, and the choice parts are bottled.

Truffles are used as a flavoring agent usually, a few slices being put into a cream sauce for chicken, sweetbreads or oysters, in stews, casserole dishes or meat pies. In some instances they are used as an entree for a special occasion. And French cooks often put slices of them in peas served with fancy croquettes.

Italian Recipe.

Rinse a bottle of truffles well and slice them very thin. Put a quarter of a pint of salad oil into a baking dish, adding salt, pepper, a minced head of garlic, a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, and a teaspoonful of mixed mace and clove. Add the truffles, and bake for three-quarters of an hour. Pour over a tablespoonful of lemon juice and serve hot, garnished with toast sippets.
